Nitrogen-doped carbon nanotubes (NCNTs) were synthesized by the chemical reaction of melamine and dicyandiamide in a refluxing system. Then, g-C3N4/NCNTs composites were prepared by a facile in situ precipitation-doping route. The chemical structure and crystal structure of the composites were characterized by means of X-ray diffraction (XRD), UV-vis absorption spectra, Fourier transform infrared spectroscopy (FTIR) and X-ray photoelectron spectroscopy (XPS). The results showed that nitrogen-doping carbon nanotubes were successfully dispersed in the composites with the introduction of g-C3N4. The composites had excellent photocatalytic activity under visible light. The mechanism of photocatalytic reduction of RhB was discussed in detail. It was found that the photocatalytic performance of g-C3N4/NCNTs composites was about three orders of magnitude higher than that of g-C3N4 and about 10 times higher than that of NCNTs.A San Francisco police officer has tested positive for the coronavirus, the police department said Sunday, making him the first member of law enforcement in the city to fall sick.
