Before you start searching online for lingerie that will make you feel sexy, consider that you will have to bear with all the stylistic inefficiencies of the customizers. For example, if you have an extremely shallow chest, the bra or bra cups that you love might look really cute only for the brief moment you have it on, but when it comes to a longer period of time, you are almost certainly going to hate it. The same thing goes for a deep-bosomed woman. Although the bra cup might look suitably sized for her, when worn in combination with a popular style of underwear, it won't look all that flattering. On the other hand, if you don't have a deep chest, or if you are a huge fan of a particular style of bra, but you don't like the way it looks when you are wearing it in combination with your favorite panties, you are going to be put through a greater number of bra-making sessions than you can count on your fingers. In fact, if you aren't a particularly visual person, it's a good idea to consult a bra sizer before you start shopping. It's going to help you determine how much cup volume you need, as well as making sure you are pairing the right style of bra and the right style of panties. There are a few key things that you should keep in mind when you are sifting through the myriad of lingerie options that are available online. If you don't have sufficient time to go through an exhaustive search process, it's a good idea to at least visit some of the major online lingerie retailers to see what they have to offer. Although there are a few sites that cater specifically to women's sport bras, the majority of women's lingerie stores are more than happy to custom-make panties or bras that you've seen on your favorite celebrities
